William French Burrows-

P R E F A C E

THE contents of this book are not only a genealogy of the direct Burrows line in America, which is relatively brief, but mostly the genealogy of William French Burrows' mother, Permelia French Burrows. Following the Burrows genealogy is the French, consisting of the direct French line and the ancestors of the wives of each generation. The sequence of the genealogies is in the historical order, and consequently, the family of Mary Noyes, wife of John French, the son of Edward French, the immigrant, is the first traced after the direct French line. The genealogy of Jane True, wife of Edward, son of John, follows the Noyes record, and this order is maintained until the generation of Permelia French Burrows.

At the end of the history of each ancestor is given a list of children. The name of the child next in line of descent to William French Burrows is capitalized in the list and his history immediately follows. If the descendants of any of these children have intermarried with other branches of the French line or with an ancestor of Annie Libby Burrows, the wife of William French Burrows, their names are also capitalized and appear elsewhere in this book or in the Genealogy of Annie Libby Burrows.

Because information of the early American French ancestors is taken from published records, only the history of the direct line is given here, until the record comes to more recent times. All information of the Burrows family and some about the other lines, accumulated from the nineteenth century, has come from family bibles, tombstones, memory, and other unpublished data. Consequently in order to have a more complete, permanent record of this type of information, the histories of all the children in the later lists have been given in more detail.

All references are in italics, and the abbreviations are as follows: b.—born, d.—died, m.—married, n. r.—no record, d. y.—died young.

BURROWS

The Burrows or Burroughs Family

The name of Burrows or Burroughs is said to have been derived from the residence of its first bearers "at the burrough or town." It is found on ancient records in the various forms of Boroghe, Burroughe, Burough, Burrow, Burrowe, Burewe, Borough, Burowe, Borow, Burrough, Burroes, Burrus, Burrowes, Burroughes, Burroughs, and Burrows, of which the last two are the forms most generally accepted in America today.

Families of this name were to be found at early dates in the English counties of Leicester, Somerset, Suffolk, Norfolk, Lincoln and London and were, for the most part of the landed gentry and yeomanry of Great Britain.

Among the earliest records of the family in England were those of the Somersetshire line, which was represented in the year 1327 by John and Richard alte Boroghe.

One of the most ancient and frequently recurrent of the several coats-of-arms of the Burroughs or Burrows family of England is described as follows:

Arms: "Azure, three fleurs-de-lis or (another, ermine)."

Crests: "An eagle, wings displayed ermine, ducally gorged or."

(Arms taken from Burke's "Encyclopaedia of Heraldry," 1851.)

Copies of letters to Arthur A. Burrows, October 18, 1918:

By direction of the President, the War Trade Board is requesting your Local Board to accord you deferred classification, in order that you may remain at your present work.

We fully sympathize with your natural preference for active service abroad, but as the President has made clear, it is essential for the successful prosecution of the war that work such as that of the War Trade Board be efficiently conducted. Under these circumstances, the War Trade Board is unwilling to accept your resignation, and trusts that, recognizing as we do the importance of your present duties, you will continue the patriotic sacrifice of performing the highly important work which has been assigned to you, and which, it is needless to say, you are doing to the entire satisfaction of the Board.

Faithfully yours,

(Signed) VANCE MCCORMICK, Chairman.

October 30, 1918.

In reply to your request to the War Trade Board to accept your resignation, in order that you may enter the Army, I regret to have to advise you that the War Trade Board is unwilling to accede to same. The work that you are doing is of such very vital importance to the successful prosecution of the war, and could not possibly be done by anyone else, that we cannot do as you ask. It would be impossible for anyone to handle the licenses for shipments of the purchases made by the allied governments without at least six months experience.

(Signed) C. A. RICHARDS, Director, Bureau of Exports.

October 29, 1918—letter to Mrs. A. A. Burrows:

I have had two talks with your husband with regard to his proposed resignation from the War Trade Board, on account of his desire to join the United States Army.

I think he knows that I fully understand his reason for this request and that I fully sympathize with his very natural desire; but looking at the matter from the viewpoint of the most good to the country, and having the interest of the War Trade Board at heart, I am writing you this note to ask you if you will not urge your husband to continue in the position that he now occupies and withdraw his request for permission to resign.

I do not know whether you fully realize the importance of his work in the War Trade Board. He has, as you know, been down here since May, 1917, and as you and he know, particularly during the summer of 1917, he has worked days, nights, Sundays and Holidays. He is in charge of a very important branch of the work, namely, the handling of all licenses for all governmental shipments made to England, France and Italy, as well as all General Bureau of Exports Licenses; and it would be absolutely impossible for us to replace him. His experience and knowledge could not possibly be duplicated.

While I appreciate it is a sacrifice for both of you, will you not make the sacrifice and urge your husband to stay?

Yours sincerely,

NOYES

REV. WILLIAM NOYES, b. 1568; d. Cholderton, Wilts, England, before April 30, 1622. He matriculated at University College, Oxford, November 15, 1588, and received his degree of B.A., May 31, 1592. He was Rector of Cholderton in 1602. He m. in 1595, Anne Parker, who who was buried at Cholderton March 1, 1657.

The fourth son of Rev. William and Anne (Parker) Noyes was:

NICHOLAS NOYES, b. England, 1615-6; came to Newbury with the first settlers in 1635 and was the first to leap ashore on the banks of the Parker River, which was named for his cousin, the Rev. Thomas Parker. He walked forty miles to qualify as a voter and was made a freeman, May 17, 1637. He was Deputy to the General Court in 1660, 1679, 1680 and 1681, and was Deacon of the first parish in 1635; m. 1640, Mary Cutting, daughter of Capt. John Cutting of London; d. Newbury, November 23, 1701, leaving an estate valued at more than 2,600 pounds.

"Noyes, Nicholas (1616-1701). Newbury, Mass. Deputy to the General Court, 1660, 1679, 1680, 1681."

Register of the Mass. Society of the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America, P. 434.

The eldest daughter of Nicholas and Mary (Cutting) Noyes was:

MARY NOYES, b Newbury, Mass., October 15, 1641; m. March 23, 1659, JOHN FRENCH of Salisbury.

Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury, Hoyt.

TRUE

HENRY TRUE, of Salem and Salisbury, bought a house-lot in Salisbury, 1657; d. there about 1659; m. 1644, ISRAEL PIKE, daughter of JOHN PIKE; she m. (2) 1660, Joseph Fletcher; and d. about 1659.

Eldest son of Henry and Israel (Pike) True, was:

CAPT. HENRY TRUE, "house-carpenter," b. March 8, 1644-5; took freeman's oath in 1675; member of Salisbury meeting-house in 1677; Representative of the General Court in 1689; Deacon July 25, 1700. Received the Commission of Captain October 29, 1696; m. March 15, 1667-8, JANE BRADBURY, daughter of THOMAS and MARY PERKINS BRADBURY.

"True, Henry (1647-1735) Salisbury, Mass., Deputy, 1689, 1690, 1692, and Representative, 1692, 1695, 1700, 1707, 1716, to the General Court; Lieutenant by 1689, and Captain, 1696, of Salisbury Company."

Register of the Mass. Society of the Colonial Dames of America, P. 474.

Second daughter of Capt. Henry and Jane (Bradbury) True was:

JANE TRUE, b. Salisbury, December 5, 1676; m. June 16, 1702, EDWARD FRENCH.

Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury, Hoyt, Vol. 1, P. 334.

PIKE

JOHN PIKE came from Langford, England, to Newbury in the ship "James" in 1635, and was evidently a man of education. He may have spent a year at Ipswich previous to coming to Newbury, but was of Salisbury when d. May 26, 1654. The name of his wife was not known. His family have been very prominent in the history of Massachusetts. His oldest son, Capt. John Pike, was among early settlers of Woodbridge, N. J., and was its first "President." His second son, Major Robert Pike, see Bradbury, Carr, Emery, Richard Smith, and Moyce, was the military genius of the early colonial period and has been called the "moral and fearless hero of New England." He defended MARY PERKINS BRADBURY during her trial as witch. His daughter m. William Carr.

The second daughter of John Pike was:

ISRAEL PIKE, b. about 1618-20; m. (1) about 1644, HENRY TRUE of Salem and Salisbury; m. (2) June 18, 1660, Joseph Fletcher of Salisbury. She d. March 12, 1699-1700.

BRADBURY

THOMAS BRADBURY, second son of Wymond and Elizabeth (Gill, nee Whitgift) Bradbury; bapt. Wicken-Bonant, Essex County, England, on last day of February, 1610-11. Early in 1634 he appeared at Agamenticus, (now York, Me.) as agent or steward of Sir Ferdinando Gorges proprietor of Province of Maine.

One of original proprietors of Salisbury, Mass., and one of the foremost citizens there for a period of more than half a century; made freeman, 1640; held at various times offices of schoolmaster of the town, town clerk, justice of the peace, deputy to the General Court, county recorder, associate judge and captain of the military company. Bradbury Memorial, Page 60. In 1636 Mr. Bradbury became a grantee of Salisbury and that year m. MARY, daughter of JOHN and JUDITH PERKINS.

Appointed first clerk of the writs in Salisbury, 1641; chosen deputy to General Court, 1651-2-6-7-1660-61-66; appointed 1654-6-8-9 on various committees to settle differences concerning lands, to fix boundries and locate grants. As agent for Gorges, he executed some of earliest deeds recorded in York County records. An indenture made May 5, 1636, reads as follows: "Thomas Bradbury, Gent. now agent of Sir Fernando Gorges, Knight." This establishes the fact that Mr. Bradbury was the recognized agent of the proprietor of the Province of Maine, granted together with New Hampshire by royal patent in 1622, to Gorges and Mason, and taken as his portion by Gorges, in 1629. Bradbury Memorial, John M. Bradbury, P. 63: In the days of the witchcraft delusion his wife, Mary Perkins Bradbury was tried as a witch, courageously defended by Major Robert Pike, and convicted, but escaped punishment by what means does not appear. During trial of Mrs. Bradbury, July 28, 1692, upon the charge of being a witch, her aged and devoted husband bore testimony to her high character and the purity of her life in the following terms: "Concerning my beloved wife, Mary Bradbury, this is what I have to say; we have been married fifty-five years, and she has been a loving and faithful wife unto me unto this day. She hath been wonderful laborious, diligent and industrious in her place and employment about the bringing up of our family which have been eleven children of our own, and four grandchildren. She was both prudent and provident, of a cheerful spirit, liberal and charitable. She, being now very aged and weak, and grieved under afflictions, may not be able to speak for herself, not being as free of speech as some others might be. I hope her life and conversation among her neighbors has been such as gives a better or more real testimony than can be expressed by words." One-hundred and eighteen of Mrs. Bradbury's neighbors and friends gave evidence for her.

Upham, the historian of the Salem witchcraft says: "The position as well as character and age of Mary (Perkins) Bradbury entitled her to the highest consideration in the structure of society at the time. This is recognized in the title "Mrs." uniformly given her. She had been noted through her life for energy, business capacity, and influence; her husband, Thomas Bradbury, had been a prominent character in the colony for more than fifty years." Bradbury Memorial, John M. Bradbury, P. 63-65.

"Bradbury, Thomas (1611-1695) Salisbury, Mass. Deputy to the General Court, 1651, 1652, 1656, 1660, 1661, 1666; Commissioner to hold court at Salisbury, 1657; captain of Salisbury Company by 1661." Register of Mass. Society of Colonial Dames of America, P. 353.

JANE BRADBURY, b. June 17, 1647; m. March 15, 1668, CAPT. HENRY TRUE.

Bradbury Memorial, John M. Bradbury, P. 67.

PERKINS

JOHN PERKINS, the emigrant of the family, b. Newent, Gloucestershire, England, 1590, sailed from Bristol, December 1, 1630, in the historic ship "Lyon" with his wife and five children. Several persons whose names were afterwards to be rendered famous made the passage on this same ship, among them being Roger Williams. After a voyage of sixty-seven days, anchorage was made in Boston, February 5, 1631, and John Perkins and his family took up their residence in Boston. He soon became prominent in the town and was a member of several important committees. He was granted the exclusive right to take fowl in nets on Noddle's Island, April 3, 1632.

He took oath of Fidelity at Boston May 18, 1631. In 1633 with John Winthrop, Jr., George Carr and others, he helped found the new settlement of Ipswich, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a member of the Board of Selectmen in 1636 and also in the same year represented the new town in the General Court held at Boston. He served often as Constable and as Crapo says, "seems to have been highly respected for his judicial qualities." He was the sole owner of "Perkins Island" in Ipswich river and also owned considerable other lands. He d. 1654, his estate amounting to about 250 pounds. His wife, Judith (Gater), survived him.

The third daughter of John and Judith (Gater) Perkins, was MARY PERKINS, b. England, about 1620; came to Boston with her parents, 1630-1; m. at Ipswich about 1636, CAPTAIN THOMAS BRADBURY of Salisbury.

Mary (Perkins) Bradbury was a victim of the unfortunate witchcraft delusion of 1692, when she, with four others, was tried and convicted of witchcraft and sentenced to die in September, 1692. By some means, however, she escaped punishment and lived "long enough to experience the revulsion of public feeling at the reign of terror which had crazed the community." (See BRADBURY).

CARR

GEORGE CARR, first of the name in Newbury, and for many years one of the most prominent men in the town, was b. London, England, 1599, and was one of four brothers, all of whom emigrated to the new world during the early years of the seventeenth century.

It has been stated that he and his wife, Lucretia (Davenport) came to America on the "Mayflower" and this tradition is partially substantiated by the remarkable genealogical brochure recorded in an old Bible by Susan Carr, wife of William Carr, a brother of Mr. George Carr, under date of 1636. It is probable that if he actually did come to this country on that historic ship, he came as a carpenter and being a ship-employee was not mentioned as a passenger. Crapo in his "Comeoverers" states that if he did come on the "Mayflower" on her historic voyage, he immediately returned and came over again. However, the matter is one of conjecture.

Bradford, the great Pilgrim chronologist, neglects to mention the names of George or Lucretia Carr in any of his writings, and genealogists of a later day, including Savage and Farmer, are silent.

The fact seems certain that the voyage was made in 1620 and that Lucretia Carr, not being able to stand the exceptionally severe winter of 1620-1, succumbed with forty others at Plymouth.

In March, 1633, John Winthrop, Jr. (son of the Governor), George Carr, and ten others started the settlement at Agawam, now known as Ipswich.

As early as 1639 he was granted a house-lot of three acres in the new town of Salisbury on the Merrimack river, although he did not make use of this land, but took possession of an island in the Merrimack river, midway between the Newbury and Salisbury shores.

The right to this island was confirmed to George Carr by the freemen of the town of Salisbury at a meeting held in July, 1640, and confirmed by the General Court November 22, 1655.

Realizing the remarkable facilities, he at once started a ferry between the Newbury and Salisbury shores and at the session of the Ipswich court, held March 28, 1641, he was licensed to "keep the ferry for the space of three years, provided that he find a sufficient horse boat and gives diligent attendance." Evidently his methods did not come up to expectations for he was hailed into court the next year for "suffering people to stand wayting at the waterside three hours to the prejudice of their health and for taking 4d a head for cattle swymming over the ferry he not affording them his help."

We may attribute these complaints to Mr. Carr's lack of equipment and to a jealousy on the part of some of the townspeople who were beginning to see that Mr. Carr intended to get a monopoly on the ferriage business.

In 1644 the General Court limited Mr. Carr's lease of service to a period of three years and in May, 1647, before the three years had elapsed, granted to Tristram Coffin the privilege of keeping a ferry running from Newbury to the Island. This grant, of course, encroached upon the rights previously granted to Mr. Carr and he addressed a petition, stating his grievances, to the General Court. In answer to his petition that body gave him the privilege of running a ferry between Salisbury shore and the Island, but, of course, this was not satisfactory to Mr. Carr as it meant cutting his business in two.

The controversy between Carr, Coffin and the General Court continued until April 9, 1650, when an order was passed (by the General Court) giving George Carr complete control of the ferriage business on the Merrimack river "provided that George Carr should build a floating bridge from Newbury to Carr's Island and from Carr's Island to Salisbury." Thus the final victory was with Carr, although in gaining it he had taken upon himself a tremendous undertaking, as the building of the bridge, upon which his future control of the ferry depended, meant the expenditure of a large sum of money and the hiring of much labor. The bridge was completed in the summer of 1655, and under date of May 5, 1655, Judge Samuel Symonds, who had previously passed over the bridge, wrote as follows in praise of Mr. Carr's success:

"Upon this day upon my return from the courts of Dover and York I came with diverse other horsemen that were with me over the float bridge of Merrimack River which George Carr hath built and I find it fully sufficient for passage both for man and horses, so that the former order of the court in reference to the bridge to be built by the said George Carr, and especially the last order of the General Court considered, I do clearly apprehend that the usual benefit of the ferry on either side doth of right hence forth belong to him, and therefore the other ferryman "Tristram Coffin" is hereby required to cease his ferriage usually unless he be employed by the said George Carr and for his use. I conceive it not amiss that you acquaint the Selectmen of Newbury and Salisbury with this, that so they may be assistant to the Court order if occasion shall require—Sml. Symonds."

As a remuneration for his services to the community, the General Court granted George Carr 150 acres of land in Salisbury and exempted the bridge from taxes.

In December, 1649, George Carr bought of William Hilton, an Indian called James.

George Carr was also quite prominent as a ship-builder, being one of the earliest in New England and at one time was actively engaged in shipping staves to the West Indies.

He d. April 4, 1682, and administration on his estate was granted to his widow, Elizabeth Carr, May 9, 1682, at

HILTON

"The first settlement in Dover and New Hampshire was commenced at what is now known as Dover Point, which for two centuries was called Hilton Point, and before that the Indians called it Wecannacohunt or Wecohamet. That settlement was begun in the spring of 1623 by Edward Hilton, William Hilton, Thomas Roberts and others. The Hiltons were brothers and it is a tradition that Robert's wife was a Hilton, sister to Edward and William."

EDWARD HILTON, "father of the Settlement of New Hampshire, was probably a native of London, of good ancestry. That he was in business with the leading men of the city is shown by his being admitted to membership in 1621, in the aristocratic London 'Fishmongers Guild,' which controlled the fishing business to a large extent at Newfoundland and along the New England coast. His connection with the Guild led to his visiting the fishing territory along the coast, so he was no stranger here when he came in 1623 in the ship 'Providence' of Plymouth—and began settlement at Hilton Point on the Pascataqua River.

Mr. Hilton's house stood where the present Hilton Hall now stands. There was his home till about 1640; a little before that date he commenced building his new home at what is now Newfields Village. It was then part of the territory of Exeter, of which town he was one of the leading citizens for thirty years or more. He d. there in December, 1671, aged seventy-six years. He held various offices, one of which was that of Judge in the first court that was established by the Massachusetts General Court after Dover and the other towns came under the rule of Mass. Bay Colony by the vote of the town in 1641. He was not married until after the settlement started, probably about 1625. First wife's name, unknown; she was the mother of his children. Second wife was Mrs. Catherine Treworgye, m. about 1650."

History of Dover, N. H., Scales, P. 310.

"Edward Hilton was no common fisherman as some might erroneously infer from the statement made by all the New Hampshire historians that he was 'a fishmonger of London.' While in England in 1873-74, Mr. John T. Hassan visited Fishmongers Hall in London, which is the headquarters of one of the oldest and wealthiest guilds, or great companies, in that ancient city; its records date far back of the beginning of settlements in New England when the fishing business was very profitable for those who owned ships and had the means to come over here and catch fish for the English market; that was what the Fishmonger's Guild did; and admission to membership was a very rigid and exclusive operation; none but well-to-do men could get in. Mr. Hassan obtained the information that Edward Hilton was admitted as a Freeman in 1621—This shows the social and business standing of Edward Hilton in London."

"They (William and Edward Hilton) were the sons of Mark Hilton, gentleman, who gave his sons a good education and enabled them to become leaders in business affairs of the period."

"Edward and William Hilton, brothers, came to Piscataqua in the spring of 1623. Edward was selected to take charge of the settlement of Dover. Sent over by the company of Laconia, settled at Dover Point. 'At first the little settlement was practically a little republic, with Edward Hilton as the company's agent, at its head.' He was first of the 'Rulers of Dover,' held office 1623-31, was regarded by the Massachusetts government as the principal man in the Dover settlement; its annexation by Massachusetts was mainly effected by him—was first named in list of magistrates of Dover 'Father of New Hampshire.' m. Shepley, agent of Sir Ferdinand Gorges in Maine, widow of James Treworgie of Kittery." Genealogical and Family Hist. of N. H., Stearns, Vol. 4, P. 1775.

"Edward Hilton first located at Dover Point; the date of his arrival in controversy, but he was definitely there in 1628. In 1633, he sold the Patent for that settlement issued to him in 1630, probably removing here at once. When John Wheelwright and his followers came to settle Exeter in 1638, Hilton already had a house here. They founded their settlement by the 'creeke next from the house toward Exeter.' Hilton lived here until his death in 1671. Tradition says the house burned about two-hundred years ago.

"Edward Hilton and many of his descendants are buried in the nearby burying place. The oldest inscribed stone is that of his grandson, Col. Winthrop Hilton, who was killed by the Indians, June 23, 1710.

SWAIN

Swaine, Swayne, Swain

RICHARD SWAIN, planter, Hampton, 1638, coming from Rowley, Mass. With wife, Basselle, came to America on "Truelove" September, 1635, at which time he was thirty-four years old. Commissioner for the ending of small causes, and lot-layer, 1639. Signed petition Howard case, 1645. Had house-lot of ten acres in Hampton next to that of Rev. Timothy Dalton. Was a man of ability and accumulated considerable property; owned house and land in Exeter, 1650. Gave part of his house-lot in Hampton to daughter, Grace, and her husband, Nathaniel Boulter, September 4, 1660; another tract to Hezekiah, eldest son of his son William, deceased, 1663. Was fined by General Court November 12, 1659, for entertaining Quakers "from which he is known to have been a broadminded, courageous and kind-hearted man." He was one of proprietors of island of Nantucket, where he removed soon after 1660. Sold remaining estate in Hampton to son-in-law, Boulter, July 6, 1663. Wife, Basselle, d. July 15, 1657; m. ## GOVE

Edward Gove, b. London, 1630; lived in Salisbury, N. H., where he "bought a dwelling house and about thirty acres of land with one share in the 'cowe commons,' also had grant of fourscore acres of land at the New Plantation with all privileges 'thereto belonging'." m. 1660, HANNAH, daughter of WILLIAM and JOANNA BARTLETT TITCOMB. Moved to Hampton; Freeman December 4, 1678; Lieutenant of the Military Company of Hampton before New Hampshire became a Royal Province; Representative 1680; Selectman 1682. He was a large landholder.

March 21, 1681, the town named Sergt. Jos. Dow and Edward Gove to prepare a statement and assert their rights against Mason. November 14, 1682, after Governor Cranfield's arrival, he was chosen as Representative to the Assembly.

Edward Gove "must have known the widespread disaffection and the determination not to yield to the demands of the Governor. He had been a resident of Hampton more than twenty years and must have been as familiar with the people and their views as any other man. His views were well known because of his outspoken sentiments. He was thought to be the right man for the Assembly and was elected." He resolved almost single handed to redress his own and others' grievances and he probably expected a general uprising among the inhabitants. The Governor having received information of his movements immediately sent messengers to Hampton and Exeter with warrants for his arrest and, fearing that Gove's party might be too strong, ordered the militia of the Province to be in readiness. The Rebellion followed January 27, 1683; then Gove's arrest, conviction, sentence to death for treason, removal to the Tower of London and final pardon in April, 1686. (The history of Gove's Rebellion is given in detail in "The Gove Book" by William Henry Gove).

Home again he was Selectman and on Arbitration Committee, 1688; Moderator, 1689. He d. May 29, 1691; wife d. before March 26, 1712.

SANBORN

Sanborn, Samborne, Sambourne or Sandbourne. The Sambornes in England were very few.

JOHN SAMBORNE, b. about 1590, England, probably removed to London with two brothers about 1615; "but the family ties were in Dorsetshire, the next county to Hampshire, where lived Rev. Stephen Bachiler, whose daughter married John Samborne, the father of the first three American Sambornes." In 1630-31, we find her, a widow, living in the Strand, London.

Children of John Samborne and wife, who was daughter of Rev. Stephen Bachiler:

JOHN.

William.

Stephen.

John, William and Stephen Sanborn were grandsons of Mr. Stephen Bachiler, the first pastor of the church of Hampton. According to tradition their father died in England, leaving these sons and their mother to the care of Mr. Bachiler, her father, and they all came to New England with him in 1632 and about six years later to Hampton. Such is probably the general belief, but no evidence is found that the mother ever came to America.

JOHN SANBORN, Lieutenant, b. about 1620, England; was in Hampton with his brothers and all in possession of house lots as early as 1644; on tax list 1653; all held town offices. John received for house lot, partly by grant, partly gift from his grandfather, Mr. Bachiler, four acres of land which appears to have been part of what constituted the homestead in later years; m. ## BACHILOR or Batchelder

REV. STEPHEN BACHILOR (or Batchelder).

The first settlers of Hampton were Puritans. They brought with them a pastor, Rev. Stephen Bachilor, who may justly be regarded as the father and founder of the town.

Mr. Bachilor was b. England, 1561, place unknown; doubtful where educated, possibly Cambridge, where many with whom he appears to have been intimate, were known to have been. If historians of Lynn are correct he was of (so called) "gentle blood." In Morgan's "Sphere of Gentry," 1661, is figured the coat of arms of Rev. Stephen Bachilor.

Mr. Bachilor received orders in the established church, but being a reformer and having the courage of his convictions, he refused to conform to some of the ceremonials . . . and therefore "suffered much at the hands of the bishops." Became a Dissenter and as a Dissenter went with friends and followers to Holland.

"The following is not infallible, but probable." A company was formed of which he was the leader called The Company of the Plough; intending to come to New England in 1630 and settle in New Town (Cambridge). Mr. Bachilor to "sit down with them" not as a Planter only, but as a Pastor also. Through false dealings of those entrusted with the ship, all was lost and he returned with his family to England, while his daughter, Theodate and her husband, Christopher Hussey, "crossed the ocean to prepare a resting place for her aged father and his church." This they found in Saugus (Lynn).

"The following is a matter of record." Accompanied by some of his family he sailed from London, March 9, 1632, in the "William and Francis;" arrived Boston, June 5; went immediately to Lynn where son-in-law, Christopher Hussey, was already a resident. There he began his ministry in New England. His church organized in Holland, uniting with others, previously at Lynn, without permission and without ceremony.

"Now it must be premised, that many Puritans, persecuted in England, fled to these shores where they became in turn persecutors, as intolerant as their enemies across the sea. They sought a quarrel against him and found it in the manner of establishing his church." The magistrates of the colony required him "to forebeare exercising his guifts as a pastor or teacher publicly," in Massachusetts, "unless it be to those he brought with him; for his contempt of authority, and 'til some scandals be removed." The term scandal has been wrongly supposed to imply immoral conduct, probably nothing more than petty quarrels. This injunction was strongly condemned by the liberty party and the magistrates were compelled to rescind it.

Mr. Bachilor remained pastor of the church in Lynn until close of 1635. At that time controversy had arisen, grounds not stated, but he was an old man and the church may have desired a young minister. Mr. Bachilor asked dismissal, but was not allowed to build another church in Lynn. He moved to Ipswich and in 1637, he and his company undertook to form a settlement at what is now Yarmouth, Cape Cod. Gov. Winthrop says he was then "about 76 years of age, yet he went thither on foot in a very hard season." The enterprise was relinquished on account of the poverty of the company. In 1638 Mr. Bachilor and some or all of his company were at Newbury and in the fall of that year settled Winnacunnet, afterward Hampton. According to tradition, a meeting house was built as soon as they had provided log cabins for themselves.

In Autumn, 1638, Winacunnet remaining still unsettled, and the time allowed to the inhabitants of Newbury for a removal hither having nearly expired, a petition, signed by Stephen Bachilor and others, was presented to the General Court asking leave to settle there. Their prayer was granted.

In 1639, probably on account of great age of the pastor, Mr. Timothy Dalton was associated with Mr. Bachilor, the latter as pastor, former as teacher. The connection was not harmonious, Mr. Bachilor being open and independent, Mr. Dalton in accord with the magistrates and elders. Mr. Bachilor was charged with immorality, but "not proven," excommunicated 1641, restored to the church, 1643; remained in Hampton.

Difficulties and distractions among the inhabitants increased; petitions and remonstrances were sent to the General Court. The town of Exeter proposed to found a new church and invite Mr. Bachilor to become their pastor, although he was then more than 80 years old, but the General Court interfered. Mr. Bachilor did not remain much longer in Hampton; moved to Portsmouth, 1647, stayed until 1650.

"It is difficult to form a just estimate of Mr. Bachilor's character. Much of our information concerning him comes through the records of the acts of the magistrates and the General Court, or the writings of Gov. Winthrop, with whom he was no favorite. His refusal to bow to unreasonable mandates made him enemies in high places, and his misfortunes followed as a natural sequence. But that he was a good and useful man, there can be no reasonable doubt."

First wife unknown had children grown up and married before he came to America; m. (2) Helena —; m. (3) probably about 1648, Mary —.

He returned to England, escorted by grandson Stephen Sanborn, probably 1655. "The ancient Stephen Bachilor, of Hampton, N. H., died at Hackney, Middlesex (two miles from London) in 1660, in the one hundredth year of his age."

"Batchelder, Rev. Stephen, abt. 1561-1600. Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Minister at Lynn, Massachusetts, 1632-1636. An Historic Founder of New Hampshire. Minister at Hampton, New Hampshire, 1638-1641."

TUCK

Tuck, Tucke, Tewk, Took, indicating that the modern names Tuck, Tooke and Tewk had a common origin.

ROBERT TUCK, from Gurlston, County Suffolk, England, came to New England 1636, or a little earlier. Lived short time in Watertown, also probably in Salem; one of grantees and first members of Hampton, lived on Rand's Hill and kept the "ordinary" or Inn. The first "ordinary" in Hampton was opened at a very early period, by Robert Tuck, in accordance with the expressed wish of the town. His house was on the corner at the juncture of the two roads, near Rand's Hill, about forty rods northwest from the site of the first Meeting-house. He continued to keep an "ordinary" there until visited England about 1654. Remained abroad about a year and on return was invited by the town to reopen his "ordinary," which he kept until death, 1664. As his son had died and his grandson was a minor the home and land were leased to Mr. Henry Doering of Salisbury.

Robert Tuck was selectman four years, town clerk three years; d. October 4, 1664; wife JOANNA d. February 14, 1674.

COFFIN

TRISTRAM COFFIN, Governor and Founder of Nantucket, Mass. His father was Peter Coffin of Brixton, Devonshire, England; son of Nicholas Coffin of Brixton, who d. 1613. Peter Coffin m. Joan Thember or Thimber.

"A long standing tradition has been proved to be incorrect. Mrs. Joan Coffin went to New England with Tristram and her daughter and d. at Boston, Mass., May 30, 1661, and from that time to the present, it appears to have been always understood that her maiden name was Thember. From the peculiarity of the name I was doubtful of the correctness of the tradition and, observing that persons of the name of Kember were then resident of Brixton, I examined the only two wills of that name. In will of Robert Keymber of Lower Hareston in Brixton are the words, 'Joane, my daughter, the wyfe of Peter Cawfing' followed by bequests to Tristram and Joane, Peter's children." Dover Notes and Queries Vol. 2, edited by Amery-Amery and Rowe. Peter Coffin d. 1627-8.

"Tristram Coffin, apparently the eldest child of Peter and Joan Coffin, was baptised at Brixton March 11, 1609-10, seven days after his future wife Deanes (Dewynce, or Dionesse or Dionise), daughter of Robert and Dunes (Dewynce or Duence) Stephen (or Steven) of Ford in Brixton, had also been baptised there. Tristram's marriage had not taken place down to December 16, 1627 (the date of his father-in-law's will) but his son Peter was baptised July 18, 1630, and another son James, September 11, 1639." Dover Notes and Queries, Amery-Amery and Rowe, Vol. 2. He came to New England 1642, living successively at Newbury, Haverhill, Salisbury and Nantucket. He was virtually King of the Island of Nantucket for he was granted a charter as Governor by the King of England and as such had full powers. He was "deposed" by the people who tired of his rather tyrannical rule. "Tristram Coffin was the ancestor of more distinguished persons in the United States and England than any other one emigrant of the 17th century." He d. Nantucket Island, October 2, 1681.

THOMPSON-WILSON

In older records spelled Thomson—afterwards Thompson.

WILLIAM THOMSON-WILSON of Kirktintillock, Scotland, took the name of Wilson in accordance with the will of Hew Wilson, his father's sister's husband, which designated that he and Isobel Hodge, the daughter of Hew Wilson's cousin, should inherit the property of said Hew Wilson in case they married and assumed the name of Wilson. Will of Hew Wilson of Kirktintillock in favor of Isobel Hodge and William Thomson, November 7, 1730.

Diagram of relationship of William Thomson and Isobel Hodge to Hew Wilson:

WILLIAM THOMSON m. ISOBEL HODGE 1730-31 (?)
 They came into possession of the lands left to them by Hew Wilson, November 19, 1743. Recorded in the Register of Dumbarton, December 12, 1743. He d. 1752; wife d. 1756. Children of William and Isobel Thomson-Wilson all born at Kirkintilloch:

HUGH, b. October 27, 1732; m. JANET CORSE; occupation, wright.

Robert, b. October 26, 1735; m. Janet Stark; occupation, mason and portioner; inherited estate after Hugh.

Margaret, b. January 7, 1740.

Isobel, b. April 10, 1753.

HUGH THOMSON-WILSON, b. October 27, 1732, Kirkintilloch, bapt. November 23, 1732.

Inherited estate and obtained charter of confirmation from Baillies of Kirkintilloch, May 8, 1756. Given possession of estate November 9, 1756.

"Hugh afterwards was always called Hugh Wilson-Thompson. The original will was in Latin and the heirs relied upon the lawyer to explain it so the name Wilson got miscarried and Thompson kept the lead, so I was told at Record Office and by descendants whom I met in Glasgow." Josephine S. Tilton.

m. JANET CORSE, 1760, in Parish of Calden, by James Hamilton, then parish minister of Bothwell. She was b.

1745, in Bothwellshire, Scotland. Contrary to terms of Hew Wilson's will, he sold part of the land in 1767, and also executed a Trust disposition in favor of his creditors of date September 6, 1765. His brother, Robert, brought suit against him and according to judgment passed by Lord Covington, December 7, 1779, he forfeited the estate which fell to the next heir, Robert. Robert did not claim the estate until Hugh's death.

About 1763, moved to Gorbals of Glasgow, where daughter, Isobel was born. Left Glasgow for Boston about December 25, 1765. Wife and children followed him to Boston, leaving Glasgow May 26, 1767, arriving Boston August 6, 1767. Remained in Boston that winter then moved to Londerry, N. H., January, 1768. April, 1768, moved to Newburyport where remained about eleven years in occupation of farming, trading, etc. 1779 moved to Kingston, N. H. d. November 4, 1780, Kingston, N. H. Wife stayed at Kingston until June 22, 1808, was living with her daughter, Isobel Thompson-Wilson Tilton, in Deerfield when she made affidavit before justice of peace of Rockingham County, July 9, 1808.

Children:

Hugh Wilson, b. June 3, 1761, Kirkintillock; d. April 10, 1780, Kingston, N. H. He was a rope maker for two or three years then was apprentice to a goldsmith.

John Corse, b. December 8, 1762, Kirkintillock, m. Sally Smith, 1784; d. February 9, 1785, Isle of St. Ann's, West Indies. "Followed the sea most of his life." Had one daughter b. February 13, 1785; m. Ebenezer Fifield of Readfield, Mass., always been supposed that part of the original Hew Wilson's estate went to Fifield family of Maine and Massachusetts. Josephine S. Tilton notes.

ISABEL HODGE, b. September 17, 1764, Glasgow, Scotland.

Four children born in Newburyport died in infancy.

NOTES

NOTE I.

The expression "freeman" and the title "Mr." in early American records are explained by the following quotations:

"Under the first charter of Massachusetts Colony, none were regarded as freemen or members of the body politic, except as were admitted by the General Court and took oath of allegiance to the government here established."

Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers of New England, Savage, Vol. 3, P. 89.

"The title Mr. so sparingly used when prefixed to a name in the records, shows he was a man of distinction."

NOTE II.

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

"The name and fame of the Honorable Artillery company of London were transplanted to Massachusetts soon after its colonization, by some of its members and a junior company was established in Boston, which is the oldest military organization on the American continent."

History of the Military Company of the Massachusetts. Now called The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts.
